JEC GROUP TO LAUNCH JEC SUMMIT SPORTS & HEALTH – CONNECT

From December 8 to 10, 2020, JEC Group will offer the composite industry an exclusive online event bringing high-end content and gathering international decision-makers. The goal of this digital event is to provide a current state of the art and best practices of composites materials in the fields of sports and health, as well as engage participants in meetings and business discussions to answer the challenges faced ahead.

JEC Summit Sports & Health is a unique event focusing on medical and sports equipment manufacturers using composites. This event will allow them to showcase how innovative technologies featuring composite materials provide answers to current challenges, improve user experience, and help it become risk-free, as well as facilitate rehabilitation and pursuing performance in high-level sports.

The event is entirely digital to comply with the current worldwide sanitary context. It will allow professionals from currently highly sought out sectors to gather from all parts of the world and be part of what could become an auspicious event. This end-users curated event will also bring together eminent keynote speeches, startup pitches, business meetings, and sponsor workshops as part of the program.

Lightweight, resistant, highly customizable, composite materials are a natural fit for the medical device and sports technology fields, which both require the best possible material combinations for safety, comfort, and performance. Composite materials are already present in various sports and health applications, from tennis rackets to bicycles and from prosthesis to surgical types of equipment. They expect to experience significant growth in the future in prosthetic devices, 3D printed applications, and components for large-scale equipment.
